

Fallen Power Lines

If you see a fallen power line do not approach it!

Assume that that's live and dangerous, and warn others in the area. If someone does go close to the line and gets injured don't rush over to try to help them.

Downed wires may not throw sparks and should always be treated as live and extremely dangerous.

Being too close to the wires can result in severe injuries or death.

Stay at least 10 m (33 ft) from the line and everything that it's touching

Call 911 to report the hazard, then call your utility company
